

Analyst Impact Investment - Part-time Position and/or Internship

Who we are

iGravity is a young Impact Investment firm connecting disruptive ideas, visionary people and capital to address some of the most pressing social issues.

The company with offices in Zurich and Milan focuses on advisory projects, investment solutions and start-up ventures in areas like financial inclusion, education, health, affordable housing, technology, food and agriculture. Our clients include family offices, international NGOs, asset managers, foundations and governments.

To further support the development of our activities we are looking for an Analyst Impact Investment on a part-time basis and/or a Trainee.

What you will do in the role

Joining our young team, you will assist in the selection and appraisal of impact investment opportunities across different asset classes including fixed income and private equity. You will contribute to the identification of investments that meet requirements of clients as well as to the analytical work incl. financial analysis and building of valuation models. This position can be based in any major European city.

What we expect from you

We are looking for outspoken candidates able to think out of the box (or break the box) with strong analytical and financial skills as well as previous experience in credit analysis, financial analysis, investment management or consulting. Candidates shall possess at least a relevant bachelor's degree or equivalent qualification.

We look for candidates with the following set of skills:

- Clear ambition to make a difference
- Enthusiastic and problem-solving aptitude, intuition and ability to anticipate hurdles
- Outstanding analytical thinking capability
- Ability to process large amounts of information and data from disparate sources
- An obsession for high quality, accuracy and perfectly presented work product
- Entrepreneurial mind-set, ability to work autonomously, getting things done

To apply

Please email patrick.elmer@igravity.net with your CV, salary expectations, starting date and a brief covering letter telling us why you are a great fit for the role. Only short-listed candidates will be contacted.